

Collection Development Policy

Mission: The citizens of Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's Counties will have equal access to information through the efficient, economic, and effective sharing of resources among public libraries and all types of information agencies.

The Southern Maryland Regional Library Association (SMRLA) affirms the American Library Association's Bill of Rights and we acquire and manage collections based on these principles.

SMRLA's library materials collection is developed and managed in cooperation with our public library partners in Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's Counties. Collection development helps SMRLA support our public library partners in achieving our strategic plan goals:

- Ensure the highest quality technical, training, resource-sharing, and research services to the public libraries of Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's Counties;
- Collaborate with partner libraries to grow their technology, collections, and capacity

Additional information about how we manage our collections is described below:

- Organization and ease of use; clarity, accuracy, and logic of presentation
- Cost and availability
- Currency of information
- Representation of an important movement, genre, trend, or national culture
- Artistic presentation and experimentation
- Contemporary materials representing various points of views, which are of current interest and possible future significance, including materials that reflect current conditions, trends, and controversies

Professional Collection

SMRLA maintains a collection of print materials to support the professional needs of Southern Maryland's library workers. The professional collection is designed to provide information of interest for all levels of library workers. Other criteria that are considered include:

- Current professional trends as identified in literature published by library and related organizations including but not limited to the American Library Association
- Materials requested by our public library partners

- The qualifications and expertise of the author

SMRLA's Training & Development Specialist manages the professional collection. Library workers in Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's Counties are welcome to submit suggestions for purchase to the Training & Development Specialist.

Maryland Documents

SMRLA maintains a Maryland State government document collection. There are no legal requirements that dictate to a depository library either selection or retention requirements; both are left to the discretion of the library and its local policies.

The collection consists of the most recent five years' of State law and code-related material which is defined as material that provides description and definition of laws or codes that have been set by the State of Maryland.

Electronic Collections

SMRLA supports our public library partners by purchasing subscriptions to electronic collections (such as ebooks, audiobooks, magazines, etc) and by providing access to the titles on the Collection of Southern Maryland's Online Services (COSMOS). Additionally, SMRLA may provide funding to acquire individual titles for electronic collections. Electronic collections are intended to provide equitable access to library materials for customers that may be unable to visit branch locations in person and to supplement print collections.

Gale Ebooks

SMRLA purchases access to Gale Ebooks for Southern Maryland's public libraries. Gale Ebooks offers access to electronic resource books on a variety of topics. The titles available are selected by a team consisting of public library staff and SMRLA staff. The titles available are reviewed and updated annually.

Hoopla

Hoopla is a simultaneous use website and app that allows customers to instantly borrow digital movies, music, ebooks, and digital audiobooks. SMRLA offers financial support for this service to our public library partners and Hoopla selects the content available to customers.

Maryland's Digital eLibrary Consortium (Overdrive, Libby)

Maryland's Digital eLibrary Consortium is a collaboration among most of Maryland's public libraries offering access to audiobooks, ebooks, and digital magazines. SMRLA contributes funding so that the libraries in Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's Counties can work together to provide an economic and wide reaching collection of materials for our customers. Other participating libraries across the state contribute to the selection of materials available on Overdrive / Libby as well.

TumbleBook Library

SMRLA purchases the TumbleBook Library for all three counties; it is a collection of electronic, animated, talking books. TumbleBook Library selects the content available to customers.

Databases

SMRLA also purchases many additional databases, which are defined as an electronic collection of records containing either full-text documents (text, video, music), citations, or abstracts of articles (or chapters in books) that are curated and maintained by a third-party. Databases can be interdisciplinary (spanning several disciplines) or subject-specific. A complete list of our online resources may be found here. Library customers will typically need to authenticate their access to these resources using their library card number, their pin, and / or by establishing an online account specific to the resource. Links to selected resources may be available in COSMOS.

A team consisting of public library workers in Southern Maryland and SMRLA staff select databases of local interest to the community. This team meets at least annually to review current offerings and to make decisions regarding retention.

Many factors are considered when purchasing databases including, but not limited to: price; cost per use; need for the content; the interface of the resource; uniqueness of the content; and alignment with public library goals.

Additionally, SMRLA makes available the research databases provided by the Maryland State Library Resource Center. Information about these resources can be found here.

Retention

SMRLA's collections are developed with the specific needs of public library workers and public library customers of Southern Maryland in mind. We build collections that can meet the information needs of a diverse and growing population. We acknowledge that some of our materials may cover controversial topics. These materials are selected in accordance with the criteria outlined in this policy in order to support SMRLA's mission.

Trained library staff regularly review all of our collections to ensure the most current and relevant resources are available. Some of the factors that we use to assess our collections include: publishing date; frequency of circulation; community interest; and availability of newer or more valid materials.
